
Baby News!

Posted by Dr. WILL KIRBY - 2009/10/29 16:51

Hi Guys!

I am ecstatic to announce that a new Kirby will be here soon and I want to thank you all so much for the kind words and well wishing - Erin and I are absolutely thrilled to be expecting our first child!

It is in times like these that you really contemplate your life and I certainly have been doing my fair share of personal exploration as of late. The phrase "truly fortunate" doesn't even begin to describe how I feel - I'm just so very thankful for Erin, my brother, his fiance, our parents, Wriggley, my co-workers and my friends. Although slightly anxious, I'm really, really looking forward to be being a dad...

How do you become a good parent? I have no idea but I'm going to do everything in my power to try to raise this baby to be as happy and healthy as he can be!

Which brings me to a point: As much as I enjoy the entertainment industry, nothing is more important to me than my family and as a result, I'm going to understandably be keeping my personal life, just that... personal. Thus you'll always be able to come back here for entertainment updates, discussions, and news but I probably won't be posting any details about my family, and most specifically, my new son.

When I see a show like "Jon and Kate Plus Eight" or I read of the "Ballon Boy" hoax, I only see detriment and I don't think we yet know the consequences of exposing children to participation in reality programing. Now at first blush that might seem rather hypocritical coming from someone who has appeared on a number of reality shows but on all programs in I've been involved with the participants were well over 18 years of age and were there by their own volition.

Regarding all the kind messages Erin and I have received, thank you from the bottom of our hearts!!!

Now I have to run... I'm meeting with Jeff Probst to discuss getting my kid on Survivor in 2028.

Just Kidding!

Love,

Dr. WILL

Congratulations to you both. There is no set way to be a good parent, Will. You feel your way through, LOL. Just love him, protect him, teach him compassion for others and right from wrong and PRAY--A LOT--to whomever you pray to. Seek the advice of your own wonderful parents and those who are wise enough to offer assistance in those frustrating times (and you will have many frustrating times, but it will all be worth it). With a little of this and a little of that, he's sure to grow into a valued and productive member of society.

Many blessings!!

OMG A BABY! A BABY! A BABY!!!! :woohoo:

New babies are the best news ever! Congratulations!!

You mention "truly fortunate" not even closely describing how you feel, well just wait until you hold that little guy in your arms for the first time...More love than you could ever imagine.

I know you say that you want to keep your personal life personal, and that is totally understandable, but I hope you also realize there are many here who truly care and would love to hear an update on how Erin is doing as well as when the baby arrives!

You thought Swine Flu was tough??? Get some sleep Dr. Will....while you can!! lol

God bless all of you!

Will and Erin I just want to say I'm thrilled for you both and I hope it's a happy and healthy pregnancy with a beautiful baby boy as the outcome. When that baby is born your world will change, for the better. Children give so much joy and love, watching them learn and play is one of the most joyful experiences you will ever have. You think Erin shopped a lot before, wait until you have to put extra poles in the closet to hold all the cute clothes. if you are anything like me, and i know you are, you will spoil that kid all the time, it's so much fun to see their happy little faces. Word to the wise, just hint to the grandparents the baby wants or needs anything and a truck will appear at the driveway full of stuff ;).

Ok, I do have an issue with you, if that kid is called Chilliham, i'm going to be mad. Also don't name him after fruit or inanimate objects.

Oh yeah and Mel is being funny, she has a little nephew here that she could never leave, her little guy. I guess she could maybe babysit, but moving away is unthinkable.

Good luck and when that baby starts doing stuff, you'll be so amazed you have to tell people, and we'll be waiting, lol.

ps: Baby Gap has the coolest baby clothes, and be sure to buy their socks, they have no slip bottoms. Don't worry you'll be an awesome Daddy.

Just received an email from Ric Ross and the "other little Kirby" congratulating you and Erin....

Dr. Will,

Huge Congratulations coming to you and Erin from Ric Ross and Little Kirby in Summerville, SC. What great news to hear! I cannot imagine how excited you must be feeling now. We will all be waiting for the great event to happen so you can post photos of the new Kirby.

Just for your enjoyment, here are a couple of photos of little Kirby for you. I hope you enjoy them.

The first photo is Kirby after he squeezed into Savannah's bed. As you can see, the bed is much too small for Kirby but he squeezed into it anyway. Savannah is only about a third the size of Kirby so naturally the bed is quite small. There was not enough room for his head so he layed his head on top of his sock monkey. As you can see, he doesn't have enough toys. LOL

The second photo is a photo of Kirby with just a few of his toys. ;-)

This boy has adjusted so well here in my home with Delta, Savannah and Bubba. I only just picked him up at Linda's home in April, but now, only 6 months later, I can't imagine how life would be without him. He is a constant amazement and brings a smile to my face throughout the day. He continues with his basic obedience training. I hope to enroll him in classes with other dogs as soon as he's mastered a few more commands. Then, on to his testing for certification as a Therapy Dog. There are so many people who will be so very inspired by this little boy.

Again, big congratulations to you in regards to this announcement of the new baby. May you and Erin be blessed in all the years to come.

Ric Ross

Oh, WOW!! Since we have a new baby in the family, I know first hand how very exciting this wonderful news is. Give Erin my very best wishes for a safe and healthy pregnancy and delivery. I'm just thrilled for both of you!

My guess is that this little guy will be a chip off the old block. Does Sears still sell trampolines? You may need a larger home with room for that "firemen's pole" for you to slide down and pretend to be a Super Hero. Then again, you won't need it. You will already be one to that little guy.

As for keeping your private life private, I'm all for that. Still we'd love to have a little very welcome information on the new arrival. We wouldn't still be here after all these years if we didn't care about you a great deal.

Again, congratulations and best wishes!!
